Hondrone, Mar 3mp, 1883.

YESTERDAY We gave insertion in our correspondence columns to a letter signed publish another latter on a cognate subject from a correspondent signing himself "Malcontent." There is undoubtedly a great deal of discontent prevailing as to the after, and the discontent is certainly well for the evils admitted to exist. To us the Governor, for him to fill the vacancy. it seems that the only remedy offering any reasonable prospect of effectiveness is the formation of an elective hody to control the municipal affairs of the town. In such a body representatives of both the European place, and its members would no doubt in of keeping order in the streets without interforing unduly with the interests of any parnuisances has fallen chiefly upon the Surveyor-General's Department, -already heavily weighted with the various highly important public works now in progress and the repair of the roads, streets, and bridges -and secondarily on the Police, who are charged with the regulation of the traffic and the preservation of order. It was not to be expected that the head of a department should be able to look after a great multitude of minor subjects in addition to the onerous duties properly appertaining to his left to subordinates, who, having little or no discretionary power, naturally fell into of dealing with them. At all events the condition of things actually existing is certainly not creditable to the Colony. Many of our streets in the matter of cleanliness and order compare unfavourably with which, like most other civilized towns of any importance, possesses a municipality. We need not go to Europe to make good the claim of this city to Municipal Government by the argument of analogy. all officials may be looked upon more or less as specialists. The advantage of a municipality is that its members are as a rule free from the fade and fancies of specialists and approach the subjects they have to consider with free and unbiased minds. In matters requiring technical knowledge specialists are engaged to draw plans, or make reports, as the case may be, and the members of the Municipal Council consider these according to the light of common sense. In Hongkong there are many matters upon which the opinion of the ratepayers as expressed through elected representatives might with great advantage be taken. The Council, if composed, as we would suggest, of Europeans and Chinese would probably be able to work together in a conciliatory spirit. On the one hand much better order might be kept in the business and European parts of the town, while in the purely Chinese portions it might be possible to relax regulations which the Chinese find irksome. At all events, the voice of the ratepayers would be able to make itself heard. and instead of fruitless grumbling we might have healthy action. As to the markets, what is required, in the case of the Central Market, is an enlarged area and improved construction: With regard to cleanliness pure and simple, we believe all that can be done under existing circumstances to secure it is done. It appears that by the C.M.S.N. Co.'s steamer Haeshin, which arrived in Foochow from Shanghai on the 12th April, there were a considerable amount of piece goods and other articles belonging to the firm of Messrs. Kaw. Hong Take and Co., British merchants at this port, who after paying duty to the Imperial Maritime Customs. instructed their boatmen to convey such goods leaving a dead body near the Wanchai Bakery, to their godown, situate on the other side of the Brid e. Whilst the boat containing this morchandise was proceeding to her destination, and just a short distance above the small bridge, she was seized by the Lekin officers-her cargo confiscated and landed, and one of the boatmen retained in oustody. A complaint was of course directly ledged with her Majesty's Consul who, we understand, demanded an immediate restoration of the property, and an explanation regard-ing the matter. OLD TIMES AROUND SWATOW.

JUNE BUILDING BY THE SWATOW MEN. The Swatow or rather the Sua-kha merchants originally built their huge junks at their homes in China, but as they required new ones from time to time, they found is better to build them in Stam. Teak lumber was then cheap as well as abundant. Rice was cheap and labour was but little in advance of what it was at home. So after a series of prosperous voyages, the chosus or chesua, as the rich man was called, would enter upon the construction of a bran new junk. We will step in upon him and note the process. A suitable dookyard was rented. centre of this yard was the mud dock itself, in which the water rose and fell with every tide, which the water rose and fell with every tide, astrong dam was built across the front. The silk filatures work on a smaller scale, or if there superfluous mud was cleaned out, and the proper at that time we shall again petition Your Exto rest upon, and that part of the place was then ready. Around the sides of the yard were built a large number of cheap sheds; these were for the accommodation of the workmen and for carrying on the various forms of work, storage of material, &c. Even the chosuc had his office here. In one of these miserable matsheds be owner, super-cargo, clerks, carpenters, sawyers, caulkers, all eating substantially of the same above petitions granted on the 14th day of the first moon in the 19th year of Knang Hau runs It was noteworthy how everything was made out of raw material. Nearly everything needed for the junk was manufactured on the premises. The lime and oil for the caulking and the chunsm work generally were mixed in one of the sheds. The ropes were twisted by the employes. Ever the blacksmith-work, in some instances, was done on the ground. But more especially the lumber was all sawed on the ground. The rafts of logs were purchased up country and brought along side to be harded up and saved according to the necessities of each stage of the work. The hes carpenters would calculate what kind of a bear or a board they wanted next and have it sawed to meet the case. There was a general in their mind, but they modified it a little as they went on, and as they found it necessary they adapted themselves to a buige here and bulge there. In the end the junk might not be exactly the shape they intended. Nevertheess, it suited just as well, and porhaps better The planks were nailed together at the edges in manuer which gave great support. Sometimes the ribs were shead of the planks, and sometimes the planks were abead of the ribs, and so the tuge mass went slowly up, first rib and then planks, and then plank and then rib. Square nails were used for round holes; but in their eaimation, that didn't matter. It was the fault of the auvers which wouldn't make square holes. It had not yet occurred to them to use round spikes for round holes. Numerous bulkhesils xtending from one side of the ship to the other. were added further on. These served a double surpose; they not only gave strength and stiff. sess to the junk, but made numerous compart. ments, very convenient for the stowage of cargo. The driving, and even furious energy, with which this work was carried on was exhibitating in that land of laziness. Day and night th rush and harry continued, for the junk must done at a certain time. Everything was in the

It was then harled on dock by means of various windlasses, and amid a desfening olamour of voices. The foot of the mast was placed in position on the deck over the socket into which it was to descend and rest; the other end reached out over the stern. But the striking feature of the mast was a square hole morticed nearly half way through it, and a short distance above the foot of it. Into this hole was put a tenor of iron-wood, reaching out more than a foot from the mast, and forming a sort o shoulder or the under side. A huge rope nearly We translate the following article from the a foot in dismeter made specially for the purpose, passed under this shoulder. Slowly the top end of the mast rose in the air; the lower end descended a little into the V-shaped socket until the shoulder rested on the big rope referred to. In a short time the entire weight of the mast rested in this rope under the tenon. At length it became perpendicular, Now was the critical moment. The excitement and anxiety were great. The chief builder was running fore and aft, and then off on the bank looking at the most from all sides to see that it was exactly in position. The guy ropes were tightened a litter here and slackened a little there until the builder was satisfied. Now then, every. body keep still, and let nobody move. The signal was given. One stroke of the hatchet set free descent. Notwithstanding this, the most fell almost suddenly a distance of six or seven feet It went into its place with a tramendous thad which made the junk quiver from stem to stern, To an observer it seemed impossible to prevent its going directly through the bottom of the vessel. But the heal of the mast did not reach the bottom. It was wedged in in shaped frame, and the force of the fall was distributed laterally, and not downward. This operation of planting the mast was done after the junk had been hauled out of the dock, as the

Moreover it has been manifested that this year the allk houge have bought from the people indiscriminately, seeking for the easiest method of obtaining the cocoons, and the result is that the demand from other sources exceeds that of the regular channels

We would therefore petition that an interdist be laid on these coccon oultivators, since the different likin stations and barriers have made ay petition to us about the matter. Moreover, the District Mugistrate of FutYong has also notified surely it is worth the trouble of a trip, to ride made the instruments of spite and envy that us that the gentry of his district have petitioned to him concerning these same stoves for killing noccons, stating that their crection will spoil the fong-shui, and the inhabitants honce will suffer sickness, and bagging us to forbid the building of the said stoves. This shows that their erection is distasteful and unpopular among the people. We on a former occasion petitioned the Futai at Foochow to strike at the root of the matter by asking him to forbid silk flatures in Shanghai, but it is feared that in the Foreign Settlement it will be no easy matter to stop them in a day, and if the silk filatures continue to work it will be hard to stop the transportation of coccons to them. Foreigners come into the interior and purchase occoons from the hongs, therefore it is necessary to consult how such hongs should be managed There have been certain regulations governing the likin on silk coccons from the time such an industry commenced, and we would now respectfully suggest that these regulations should be revised of what is detrimental. For this purpose we present eight rules for approval. And if cellency to investigate and issue a proclamation about the matter, and Iso on the one hand order the different likin stations and barriers to set up to the said rules, and on the other hand to request the Futai of Kinng-su to order the Socohow and Shanghai Likin Bureau to do the same, who shall in time give orders to the N. and S. likin. kept his books, made his contracts, and paid out barrier station of Shanghai to keep a strict enpervision as to how much cocoons have been collected and to make a monthly report on them. PROPOSED REGULATIONS, L-With reference to taxing silk coocons it has been the custom to tar them on the same principle as raw silk, that is to say, they are taxed first before being put in the market. This tax was evied on the people by the officials. It is, therefore, a aggested that, following the same principle, this change shall be made—that the Licensed Coonon Hongs should collect the taxes. and shall in turn report the amount to the nearest lekin stations. On a report being made. the lekin office shall depute one or two efficient officials to examine the goods, and thus prevent any attempts at smuggling, 2 -The permits on concens hitherto granted differ among Chinese and foreigners; that is to say, foreigners obtain a transit from the Custome in which it is expressed that the pass has been granted to a foreign merchant, while Chinese merchants in transporting the cocoons to Shanghai have a silk permit on which large co tell as small seals are stampe t. It is proposed in the future, when the decoons have been weighed and are ready for export to tax them; according to the transit pass system. If the merchants already have transit passes for goods and wish to export them, they can go directly to the likin office and have the necessary stamps of the permits affixed to the transport passes. We would also suggest that orders may be given to the Sung-chiang and Shanghai head likin offices to have the Northern and Southern barrier

The second part was to be torn off and sent to the Shanghai Castoms to serve as a tally the third was to be placed on file at our office In the 5th year of Knang Han we saked the Shaughai Customs to communicate with the ifferent Consuls requesting them to notify their subjects after that date, when getting occoons rom Che-king, to obtain permits and go to the parrier stations and report the quantity of socoons they required to purchase. Also that they should procure one pass for each boat, and in passing any barrier station, allow it to be searched and examined and have the stamp affixed ou the pass. We also surgest that the liking stations be notified about the holders of such rangit passes, that as each lot of goods (occoons) pass from the first barrier station they should ill up the permits according to form, designate the quantity of goods and stamp the pass. They are then required to send us a copy, and we will then issue transit passes and permit the goods o proceed. This will thus enable us to examine into the revenue collected by each likin barrier station. The permits and passes given by the likin office can then be compared and examined by the officials of each barrier that the goods may pass through. If the weights do not agree, or it there are no passes, the station which discerns the fact shall detain the boat, and the case shall be treated according to the article

provided by Treaty. 4:-The export of cocoons was at one time very small, and a distinction between fresh and dry ones was made, the duty on fresh ones being lighter, in order to encourage those of smaller means among the people. These few years the export of cocoons is very great and their prices have accordingly doubled. Hence the cases of now-a-days and former times are different, and it is therefore necessary to meet such an emergency and raise the duty on them. We find that the country people mostly bring fresh cocouns to the collectors, so we propose hereafter to levy $4.00 duty on each piculs and write the quantity on the passes or receipts. As to the dry opocons. when they shall be ready for export, these receipts shall be changed into the transit passes at the rate of three piculs of fresh cocoons to one ploul of dry. And it shall be the duty of the collectors to write out "Dry Cocoons" instead of "Fresh Cocoons" on the passes. The permitshall then be pasted on the duplicate of the pass and forwarded to the head likin office. Should the country people roast the goodons themselves and bring them out for sale, then one catty of dry cocoons shall be considered equivalent to three cattise of fresh. And the duty on them will be $12.00 per pioul. The collectors shall be allowed. to deduct 24 per cent. of the duty lovied by way of encouragement. The experted coccous shall be furnished with stamps issued by the liking stations, which shall be pasted on each bale. The stamps also shall have the weight of each bale written on them, besides the date corresponding to shat written on the transit passes. Five catties shall be allowed for the wrappers of each bale of cocoons. The likin stations passed on the road shall examine them and take any bale at random and weigh it to see whether it

ANGLISH AND CHINESE DICTIONARY. WITH THE PUNTI AND MANDARIN.

PRONUNCIATION. An Anglo-Chinese Dictionary, published at the Daily Press Office, Hongkong. For comprehensiveness and practical service this Work stands unrivalled. All the new words which the Chinese have of late years been compelled to coin to express the numerous objects in machinery, photography, telegraphy, and in science generally, which the rapid advance of foreign relations has imposed upon them, are here given in extenso. Each and every word is fully illustrated and explained, forming exercises for students of a most instructive nature. Both the Court and Punti pronunciations are given, 712 the accents being carefully marked on the best principle hitherto attained. The typography for NINGPO, CHEFOO, NEWCHWANG, TIENTEIN, displays the success of an attempt to make the Chinese and English type correspond in the size THE Company's Steamship NO BE LET FURNISHED for the Sum. of body, thereby effecting a vast economy of mer months, A COMFORTABLE FAMILY space, achieving a clearness not previously attained, and dispensing with those wast margins | Captain Ward, will be despatched on or about and vacant spaces which have heretofore charac- the 4th May.

terized Chinese publications. To illustrate the vast scope of the work, the following facts are submitted for consideration :-Chaimers' Vocabulary contains about 16,000 Chinese characters, and Medhurst's English and Chinese Dictionary about 100,000, whilst this work contains more than 50,000 English words, and upwards of 600,000 Chinese characters. Again, despite all the grammars and other elementary works as yet published, the student of this difficult language absolutely requires examples to display the various applications and equivalents of different words which have one general meaning. Of these examples this work contains more than five times as ROSE VILLAS WEST, on Bonham and lished.

For practical purposes the arrangement of FITHE Company's Steamship. the work is so complete that a reference to its pages enables a person who understands English to communicate effectively with natives who Captain Nish, will be despatched on or about understand nothing but Chinese, In this respect the 17th May. the work will be found indispensable to all Europeans residing in China, and to the natives themselves it explains subjects fully with which yery few indeed of them are perfectly acquainted. lo partice resident in England and interested as a LAEGRE, CHOICRE, and more COMPLETE in China it cannot but be invaluable occasion-It comprises upwards of two thousand large FITHE P. & O.
